

A couple of months ago we decided to sell our home and towards that end looked into finding a real estate agent that met our needs. After some research we met with Susan Lancaster and her professionalism and enthusiasm were instant selling points. We made up our minds almost instantly.

During the short time our home was on the market we were not disappointed; her marketing skills and advertising program were unsurpassed. Throughout this period her caring and thoughtfulness proved both invaluable and reassuring whenever there was an unexpected turn of events. Our time on the market was short and the results very satisfactory.

We were privileged to discover a person who we would be proud to call a friend. We would have no hesitation recommending her as an agent knowing the quality of her work and the energy she brings to every sale.
